

Mark Irvine, Board of Management
Lives in Kilcreggan.

Mark Irvine

I am semi-retired, although it never feels like it, as I am still a Non-Executive Director of 2 companies I founded over 20-years ago. I am also doing some consultancy work in the renewable energy sector. I am married to a successful TV presenter in the antiques world and I can sometimes be found running my wife's shop in Kilcreggan when she is away filming. Thankfully I share her passion for antiques.

I hope to be able to bring my corporate and commercial skills to the Board of Management and I share the ambitions of ACHA to deliver the very best, energy efficient housing, possible. I have spent most of my working life in heavily regulated organisations and I hope that my experience will prove valuable to the Board of Management. I am also a bit of 'techie' and I hope to be able to support the organisation as it develops and implements new technologies and systems in the years ahead.

I play golf (badly!), I play the guitar (much better than I play golf) and I am writing my first work of fiction!
